We are pleased to invite you to the International Conference for Sustainable Design of the Built Environment (SDBE) held in London, UK on 20th and 21st December 2017. The SDBE conference is a unique opportunity for academics, researchers, architects, urban designers, engineers, building consultants and professionals to meet and share the latest knowledge, research and innovations on low carbon building design, building performance, simulation tools and energy efficient building related technologies. The conference focuses on sustainable design, building energy performance, sustainable planning of neighbourhoods and cities emphasising a balanced approach to environmental, socio-economic and technical aspects of sustainability. The conference will form a platform to demonstrate state-of-the-art strategies and best practice across the world for integrating sustainable development approaches in the built environment. The conference includes keynote speakers and technical workshops to maximise opportunities for knowledge exchange.

Conference Themes
- Sustainable urban design
- Education for sustainability
- Bioclimatic and passive design
- Zero and low carbon design
- Sustainable construction and technology
- Building Performance Evaluation (BPE)
- Post Occupancy Evaluation (POE)
- Energy efficiency in buildings
- Renewable energy technologies
- Indoor Environmental Quality (IEQ), health and wellbeing
- Building simulation and Building Information Modelling (BIM)
- Innovative didactics for sustainable development

Key Dates
- Call for papers: 10th June 2017
- Abstract submission deadline: 15th July 2017
- Notification of acceptance: 30th July 2017
- Full paper submission deadline: 15th Sep 2017
